Investment Manager Commentary

Equity market posted positive performance in July supported by positive newsflow from global and domestic markets. On the global front, the market was driven by optimism of a more accommodative The Fed to support growth amid various global headwinds. Market's optimism on The Fed's course was also supported by European central bank and Bank of Japan that pivot to a more accommodative stance. On the domestic front, the market welcomed Bank Indonesia's decision to cut rate from 6% to 5.75%, and BI's accommodative stance that opens to further rate cut. JCI index rose 0.50% in July, while Hong Kong equity market in IDR fell 4.07% amid pro-democracy protest. Rupiah appreciate 0.74% against USD to 14,126 amid higher appetite for Indonesian asset. Portfolio allocation in Communication and Real Estate sectors result in positive attribution to portfolio, while allocation in Materials and Energy sectors posted negative attribution.
