Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia equity market experienced volatile month in March while the bond market posted positive performance. Central banks in developed markets signalled a more accommodative policy in March. European central bank indicates no interest rate hike this year, and The Fed followed by signalling no interest rate hike this year as well. The shift in policy direction were welcomed by markets in Asia, especially after a tumultuous period in 2018 due to aggressive Fed rate hike. On the flip side, concerns regarding economic recession became more prominent in the month amid a slew of disappointing economic data. Amid global volatility, JCI closed higher 0.39% in March and the bond market rose 1.70%. However Rupiah fell 1.24% to 14,243 per USD. Foreign investors appetite for Indonesian market remain strong with net inflow of IDR1.7 trillion to equity market and IDR25.2 trillion to bond market. Bond allocation posted positive contribution to the portfolio, while equity allocation were under pressure amid volatile equity market.
