Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia equity market experienced volatile month in March due to global factors. Central banks in developed markets signalled a more accommodative policy in March. European central bank indicates no interest rate hike this year, and The Fed followed by signalling no interest rate hike this year as well. The shift in policy direction were welcomed by markets in Asia, especially after a tumultuous period in 2018 due to aggressive Fed rate hike. On the flip side, concerns regarding economic recession became more prominent in the month amid a slew of disappointing economic data. Global economic data is likely to be market mover going forward as investors will pore over every economic data to gauge global economic health. Amid global volatility, JCI in USD closed lower 0.30% in March due to weaker Rupiah that fell 1.24% to 14,243 per USD. Meanwhile China equity in USD rose 1.57%. Foreign investors appetite for Indonesian market remain strong with net inflow of IDR1.7 trillion to equity market and IDR25.2 trillion to bond market. Portfolio allocation in Industrials and Consumer Discretionary sectors result in positive attribution to portfolio, while allocation in Materials and Financials sectors posted negative attribution.
