Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia economy macro remained conducive in March. The CPI was up +0.11% MoM, making a YoY inflation of +2.48% (down from +2.57% in February). The figure is the lowest annual inflation since November 2009. Close-to-zero food inflation and lower electricity inflation (-0.01ppt) were the main reasons for the very low CPI. Core inflation came in stable at +3.03% YoY (vs. +3.06% in February), indicating that consumer demand is still relatively strong. Bank Indonesia's 7 Day Reverse Repo interest rate remains 6% in March. Portfolio performance was higher than the benchmark due to return from money market placement still quite high.
