Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia bond market was positive in March supported by dovish stance by central banks in developed markets. European central bank indicates no interest rate hike this year, and The Fed followed by signalling no interest rate hike this year as well. The shift in policy direction were welcomed by markets in Asia, especially after a tumultuous period in 2018 due to aggressive Fed rate hike. Foreign investors appetite for Indonesian market remain strong with net inflow of IDR1.7 trillion to equity market and IDR25.2 trillion to bond market. However Rupiah fell 1.24% to 14,243 per USD. Allocation in medium-short tenor bonds posted positive contribution to portfolio performance.
