Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia equity market posted negative performance in September amid heightened global markets volatility. Concern of global recession is rising following weaker economic data from US and Europe, especially on the manufacturing sector. Meanwhile, global central banks continued its rate cut cycle as expected by the market. The Fed cut its benchmark rate to 1.75 - 2.0%, while European central banks also cut its rate further into negative territory from -0.4% to -0.5% and announced EUR20 billion per month bond buying program to support growth. Inline with global central banks, Bank Indonesia also cut its benchmark rate from 5.50% to 5.25%, matching market expectation. Despite the interest rate cut, IDX SMC Liquid index closed lower -1.03% in September, hampered by lack of positive catalyst on the global and domestic markets. Foreign investors posted net sell of IDR7.4 trillion. Rupiah was relatively stable despite of global volatility, +0.02% MoM in September to IDR14,195. Portfolio allocation in IT and health care sectors posted positive attribution, while allocation in real estate and industrials sectors posted negative attribution.
