Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia financial market continued strengthening. Optimism for second half economic recovery along with reopening of the economy and hope for government stimulus acceleration support Indonesia financial market performance. Attractive real yield on the Indonesian bonds – one of the highest in the region – and high banking liquidity due to low credit disbursement this year increased demand for Indonesian bonds. In order to support growth Bank Indonesia cut another 25 basis point to 4.0%. July inflation decreased to 1.54% YoY from 1.96% YoY in the previous month. FX Reserves in July hit highest record of USD135.10 billion, exceeding the previous highest level of USD131.97 billion in January 2018. Rupiah weakened 2.35% against USD. Portfolio allocation in equity result in positive attribution to performance.
