Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia bond market improved with modest support from foreign inflows in April. The 10Y US Treasury yields went significantly lower and stabilized from 1.70% to 1.54% as a result from continuous Fed communication that monetary policy remain accommodative. As the US Treasury yields stabilized, moderate sum of inflows came in hence boosted the Indonesian bond market where the 10-year bond yield went down substantially from 6.67% to 6.41%. Foreign investors booked net buy of IDR13.20 trillion in April. Indonesia macroeconomic condition improved in April, where GDP for first quarter 2021 showed narrower contraction of 0.7% YoY, from -2.2% YoY the previous quarter, supported by strong net exports as well as improvement in investment and consumption. Inflation remain low at 1.42% YoY, relatively low for Ramadhan month that tend to have spike in inflation. Trade activity is strong, where exports grew 30.5% YoY and imports grew 25.7% YoY.
