Investment Manager Commentary

Asia Pacific stock market was volatile throughout the month of January; the increasing number of Corona virus cases worldwide, the prospect of a bigger US fiscal stimulus, high inflows from mainland investors and liquidity pressure in China are affecting Asian stock market movements – as a whole FTSE Sharia Asia Pacific ex. Japan Index in IDR rose by 1.77%. In fourth quarter China booked economic growth higher than estimation 6.5% YoY, so that in current year China GDP grew by 2.3% YoY. Better Covid-19 containment has made China's economy rise and appears to be the only major country spared from an economic contraction in 2020. Portfolio allocation in industrials and IT contributed positive attribution, meanwhile allocation in consumer discretionary and consumer staples contributed negative attribution to performance.
