Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia bond market recorded another positive figure in July, with the 10-year Indonesian government bond yield fell from 6.59% to 6.30%. Neutral Fed seemed to have been anticipated by the market as The Fed ensured gradual communication and tapering of asset purchases would take place in an orderly way. Positive market sentiment also supported by government plan to reduce bond supply 24% lower than its initial target. Foreign investors booked a net sell of IDR8.33 trillion, thus the foreign ownerships posted a decrease to 22.53% of total outstanding tradable government bonds from 22.82% in the previous month. It was suggested that some bonds matured in July was the reason behind the declining foreign investors' position. July's inflation accelerated to 1.52% YoY from the previous month of 1.33% YoY. Yields on medium tenor bonds fell deeper than short tenors.
