Investment Manager Commentary

Global stock markets weakened overshadowed by Russia Ukraine conflict. The market is paying attention to the surge in world commodity prices and their impact on the outlook for economic growth. Given that Russia and Ukraine have important roles in the world's oil and gas, industrial metals and food supply chains, the immediate impact will be rising commodity prices and inflation. The minutes of the FOMC meeting show that the Fed is not planning to be more aggressive than previously indicated. The minutes show that the current economic and financial market conditions allow for faster balance sheet reductions compared to the 2017-2019 period, but so far have not provided details on how the balance sheet reductions will be carried out.
