Investment Manager Commentary

Asian stock market rose amid optimism for stimulus from China and the easing of COVID-19 restrictions in Shanghai. China cut its benchmark property loan interest rate from 4.60% to 4.45%, and announced additional stimulus in the form of tax breaks for businesses affected by the Covid lockdown to support economic growth. In addition, China's Vice Premier Liu He said the government would support digital companies, the statement was seen as a signal that the Chinese government would reduce pressure on technology companies. Several central banks such as India, Australia and South Korea raised interest rates to cope with inflationary pressures. Portfolio allocation in materials and industrials contributed positive attribution, meanwhile allocation in consumer discretionary and IT contributed negative attribution to performance.
