Investment Manager Commentary

Global stock markets strengthened supported by optimism that the Fed could start moving more gradually after the US inflation data was lower than market expectations, monthly inflation in October grew 0.4% MoM lower than expectations of 0.6% and annual inflation grew 7.7% YoY lower than expectation of 7.9%. The minutes of the Fed's meeting indicated that while interest rates may need to rise more than anticipated, the central bank could be more patient in getting there. The 10-year UST yield closed to 3.61% from the previous month's close of 4.05%.
