Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia bond market was volatile in September. The Fed's monetary policy was a key focus after Fed Chair Jerome Powell affirms The Fed's priority is to tackle inflation even as growth is expected to run below trend. The Fed revised its terminal rate expectation to 4.6% from previous expectation 3.8% while growth forecast revised down for 2022 and 2023. This statement was not well received by the market that expected The Fed could pivot to be more dovish in 2023. Meanwhile on the domestic front, Indonesia macroeconomic condition remain supportive. Trade balance posted another big surplus USD5.76 billion in August, higher than market expectation. The Government raised subsidized fuel price by 31% to reduce pressure on State Budget, but there was no negative reaction from the market regarding this policy as the move was well telegraphed. Bank Indonesia raised benchmark rate by 50bps to 4.25% to manage inflation expectation and attractiveness of Indonesian asset following The Fed's more aggressive rate trajectory. The yield curve showed bearish pattern where yield on all tenor rose, especially moderate tenor that posted the highest increase in yield.
