Investment Manager Commentary

Global stock markets recorded negative performance overshadowed by the Fed's hawkish statement which stated that further interest rate increases were still possible and high interest rates could last longer than expected. Investor pessimism about China's economy also adds to sentiment. Jerome Powell at the Jackson Hole symposium stated that tight policy could be maintained for longer and the central bank would be careful in assessing whether to raise interest rates again. Ratings agency Fitch Ratings cut the US debt rating by one level from AAA to AA+ after the US Treasury Department increased its debt securities auction target. The increase in debt amidst high interest rates is one of the factors that caused Fitch to downgrade the US debt rating.
