Investment Manager Commentary

Asia equity market recorded a negative performance in April, where rising share prices in Indonesia and India were unable to offset declines in China, Taiwan and Thailand. Geopolitical concerns and inflationary pressures from rising oil prices overshadowed market sentiment because the Asian region is a net oil importer that is sensitive to fluctuations in oil prices. Meanwhile, Samsung Electronics cut semiconductor production to support weak memory chip prices amid sluggish world consumer demand. This news is a positive sentiment for world semiconductor issuers. In the first quarter, China's GDP grew 4.5% YoY, higher than the estimated 4.0% and 2.9% in the previous period. Economic acceleration is supported by the recovery of domestic consumption. China's GDP growth expectations remain strong, consensus projection revised up to 5.5%, higher than Chinese government's target of 5.0%. Portfolio allocation in communication services and health care contributed positive attribution, meanwhile allocation energy and consumer discretionary contributed negative attribution to performance.
