Investment Manager Commentary

The bond market recorded another positive performance. The yield on the 10-year bond fell from 6.36% to 6.24%, this condition was different from that of the 10-year UST yield which rose from 3.64% to 3.76% at the end of the month. Amid The Fed hawkishness, Indonesia bond market seems to be ignoring US interest rates policy that is potentially to be 'higher for longer' supported by solid domestic fundamentals and improving sentiment. Bank Indonesia maintained its benchmark interest rate at 5.75%, amidst continued falling inflation, although BI continues to monitor the impact on the exchange rate. From the supply and demand side, the supply of bonds is expected to continue to decline due to high SAL funds and expectations of a smaller budget deficit. Liquidity in the banking system is still abundant amid moderate credit growth. Yields on short tenors fell slightly more than medium tenors.
