Investment Manager Commentary

Asia Pacific equity market was weaker in the first half of March, but managed to rebound and posted positive return for the month. The collapse of several US banks and Credit Suisse in Europe raised concern of financial crisis like in 2008. However, quick reaction from the regulators managed to calm the markets and avoid wider contagion risks. Market sentiment also supported by expectation of The Fed nearing its peak rate hike cycle, signaled by The Fed's recent projection that terminal rate expected to be at 5.1%, one rate hike away from current level 5.0%. These caused interest rate sensitive stocks such as growth stocks in the technology and communication to rally and support overall market performance. Weaker USD as policy expectation turned dovish also a key support for the Asian markets. Portfolio allocation in IT and materials contributed positive attribution, meanwhile allocation in industrial and consumer discretionary contributed negative attribution to performance.
