Investment Manager Commentary

Indonesia market posted positive performance in August supported by stronger expectation of rate cut and stable domestic environment. US labor and inflation data continue to moderate in the month, paving the way for Fed rate cut in September. Market expectation grew stronger following comment from Fed Chair Jerome Powell that indicate the time has come to adjust policy. This condition caused risk-on sentiment in global market and flows to emerging markets including Indonesia. Stable domestic condition is a key factor supported by low inflation and stable high growth rate. Bank Indonesia maintains benchmark rate at 6.25% and signals that room for rate cut is open in 4Q-2024. The government's 2025 state budget plan indicate that discipline fiscal management will remain in place, with fiscal deficit reduced to 2.5% of GDP from 2.7% in 2024. Rupiah appreciated 5.0% against USD in August.
