Investment Manager Commentary

Global equities continued its positive performance in August supported by stronger expectation that The Fed can continue its rate cut in September. US nonfarm payroll data was revised down significantly indicating weakness in US labor sector than previously expecter. A deteriorating labour market supports the case for a September rate cut, further reinforced by dovish remarks by the Fed Chair at the Jackson Hole Symposium. The market also welcomed extension of US - China tariff negotiation for 90 days to November. Meanwhile the US threaten to slap further tariffs against India to 50% due to India's oil and gas trade with Russia. Chinese equities outperformed in the month driven by market optimism on the outlook of China's domestic technology sector. China set ambitious target to triple chip supply by 2026 to enhance technology self-reliance.
