Investment Manager Commentary

Bond market began 2025 with positive performance, as softer readings on US December CPI and US Q4 GDP supported market confidence on potential Fed rate cut in 2025 and managed to calm the market down on worry over potential tariffs to be imposed by Trump. Bank Indonesia surprised the market by cutting BI Rate 25bps, and signaled shift in policy focus from Rupiah stability to more balanced stance of growth and stability. BI highlights weaker domestic growth and low inflation as key reason to cut rates. Meanwhile, the government showed more urgency to support domestic growth. President Prabowo initiated budget efficiency of IDR306 trillion to be reallocated to program that support people's welfare. This followed earlier decision to cancel VAT hike in a bid to support purchasing power. Indonesia GDP growth came in at 5.02% in Q4-2024, higher than consensus expectation of 4.96%. However, household consumption was disappointing, which has remained below 5% for five consecutive quarters. Short-tenor bonds outperformed in the month, with the yield on 5-year bonds dropped 16bps, while the mid-long tenor bonds underperformed, with the 10-year yield dropped 3bps and the 20-year rose 2bps.
